From Multidisciplinarity to lived interdisciplinarity

Workshop on
Team Work in Rehabilitation

September 25 – 28, 2013
Hannover, Germany

3rd Baltic & North Sea Conference on
Physical and Rehabilitation Medicine

118th Congress of the German Society for
Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation

Annual Congress of the Austrian Society for
Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation
Greeting address

Dear Colleagues,

We would like to invite you to attend Workshop on Team Work in Rehabilitation that will be held within 3rd BNCPRM/118th DGPMR/Annual Congress of ÖGPMR on September 25-28, 2013, in Hannover, Germany.

From multidisciplinarity to lived interdisciplinarity

Advanced team work is a hallmark of Physical and Rehabilitation Medicine. Available evidence indicates that effective teamwork provides better patient outcomes than less coordinated interventions by single professional in a whole range of disorders.

There is limited published evidence, however, on which the key components of successful teamwork in rehabilitation are. Furthermore, the impression is that most rehabilitation interventions in Europe are directed by single professional rather than by well coordinated teams. For these two reasons, the BNC on PRM wants to use the opportunity of this session to discuss this most important part of clinical practice in rehabilitation medicine with all professions concerned.

The different workshops follow the description of the theoretical basis for good team working, i.e.
- effective communication
- agreed aims as well as agreement and understanding on how this is best achieved
- mutual trust and respect
- willingness to share knowledge and expertise

It is intended to look beyond multidisciplinary teamwork, to discuss the advantages of interdisciplinarity as a further step towards better clinical outcomes in rehabilitation. Interdisciplinary teamwork means a more advanced coordination of goal setting, strategies and evaluation.

In contrast to the 2011 Vilnius-Congress the workshops will be multiprofessional rather than monoprofessional this year, as the advantages of multiprofessional teamwork was an agreed conclusion of the summary of this last BNC-PRM-meeting.

The specific workshops on acute rehabilitation of traumatic brain injury, on post-acute rehabilitation of multitrauma, and on vocational rehabilitation enlarge the spectrum of possibilities of exchange and discussion of experiences, experiments and ideas for the future.

The discussion in all workshops will be interactive and aim at active participation of participants from all rehabilitation professions.

We are happy to welcome you to these workshops and look forward to having you in a fruitful discussion.
